The workshop includes simple, yet powerful Kinesiology techniques will assist you to adapt to environmental stress, and in so doing, you can learn to change gene expression, not only for our own wellbeing, but as we pass epigenetic markers onto future generations we have the power now to break the cycle!

What you can expect from the workshop:

- Understand the latest research on epigenetics
- Understand the influence of epigenetics on your biology
- Understand the impact of stress, fear, beliefs and emotions on your biology
- Understand emotion and learn effective coping tools
- Learn basic self testing
- Learn five different and powerful kinesiology healing techniques

What are Epigenetics?

For many years medical science have studied the human body as a biological machine that can be broken up into its smallest parts and treated symptomatically and that disease is largely a result of gene expression over which we have no power. The result is that we feel that we are a victim of our make up and that one day our inherited patterns will inevitably manifest.

In his book “The Biology of Belief”, Dr Bruce Lipton proves, through his study of epigenetics, that our perceptions of life and our life-style are constantly shaping our biology. We then, with the right information, can become the masters of our health biology and live a life free of genetic predisposition.
